Is a call from the CRA trouble? Not necessarily

By AdvocateDaily.com Staff

Keep everything in writing.

That's part of a message being shared by Toronto tax litigator Adrienne Woodyard in a recent video on AdvocateDaily.com.

In the interview, Woodyard, a member of Davis LLP, touches on the difference between a routine and non-routine audit, what the CRA looks for and how taxpayers can protect themselves.

"Taxpayers need to be able to demonstrate if the audit goes off the rails that they provided the level of co-operation that was expected of them," she says. Watch Video
