

Nadia Boschi

PhD, Architect, Head of Sustainability Italy and Continental Europe, Lendlease

Nadia Boschi is the Head of Sustainability Italy and Continental Europe at Lendlease, Ambassador of the World Green Building Council's Building Life policy campaign and Trustee of the International Society of Indoor Air and Climate.

She has 25 years of international experience in the construction, infrastructure and property industry sector across international markets. She was Professor of Building Construction at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University (US), Design Manager and Head of Sustainability Italy and Continental Europe for Lendlease.

She's a strong sustainability strategist and a leader in market positioning of large-scale urban developments.

She is internationally recognized for developing environmental policies by the US government, the EU and the World Health Organization. She's given lectures at Harvard, the University of Sydney, Delft University, Polytechnic of Torino and of Milan. And she's been on the board at the Green Building Council and the International Society of Indoor Air Quality and Climate.